Hongkong, Serrember 23pp. 1878. In another column will be found an address. presented by the Anti-Slavery Society in England to His Excellence: Kwon Suns-rao at the Legation, Portland Place, on the emigration treaty between Spain and China. This address might have some little weight at Peking if the Chinese Minister were forward it thither, with comments favourable to the views expressed by the deputition. But Kwon was careful, apparently, not dispated,! to give any orinion on the subject and confined himself to promising that he would forward the memorial on to His Excellency GREN LAN-PIN, now in America, and who with the Mission to Spain, Cuba, and Peru. The wisdom of the course adopted by Kwon cannot be questioned. CHEN will see the Mudrid Authorities, and will be able water played a good distance up the hill, but ground. The prisoner was near the group and to bring forward the doubts entertained as to the bond fides of Cuban planters, and mention the feeling entertained in liberty-loging countries with regard to the maintonance of that ugly blot on civilization-slavery-in the Pearl of the Antilles after, it has been abolished in almost every other country. give the Spanish Government its due, we believe that it fully intends to abulish slavery in Cuba at an early dite, but has not deemed it expedient to broach the subject until its authority is re-established in such a manner as to render it safe and practicable to take the step. The fact that Spain has abolished this evil institution in the island of Porto Rico is a pretty plain proof that she can have no desire to maintain it in Cuba, where its abuses have been so great and conspicuous; The Anti-Slavery advocates in Great Britain should have a little patience. It is only a. few months since the long and disastrous civil war in Cuba was brought to a close by the triumph of the Government, and it is not too much to ask that time may be allowed for this victory to be consolidated and its fruits reaped. The Spanish Government has shown a landable desire to improve the condition of Cuba, and the treaty negotiated with from that country to Havana was undertaken with this view. If there are any clauses of it obwould doubtless be prepared to amend them. and the Madrid Authorities are ready, we emancipation of the slaves in Cuba will take place at an early date. The Chinese Minister will have a good chance of witnessing how his countrymen are treated in Cuba, desirable for the immigration to be recommenced. There is no doubt that for his equitable treatment, the immigration the island. The Chinese steamer Yung Ching arrived here on Saturday morning from Canton. We hear that something in the shape of a sea serpent was seen on the passage down from Shanghai, which occurrence, strange to say, was quite forgotten upon the arrival of the steamer here on the 17th instant. According to the information we have received it appears that on the morning of the 17th instant, at about seven c'clock, the Yang Ching being then near Breaker Point, and the second officer on watch, a sea serpent sixty feet ong was seen, by the second compradors, on the sturboard bow, about two lengths of the ship off. The attention of the chief engineer was then drawn to this sea monster. The body of the serpent was spotted and floating on the surface of the water, its head, about one foot long and six inches thick, was reared up out of the waves, peculiar about the affair is that the second mate did not see the levisthan.

THE PRINCESS OF TREBIZONDE AT THE THEATRE ROYAL.

On Saturday night the Royal English Opera Company performed Offenbach's comic opera "The Princess of Trebizonde" at the Theatre Royal, before a very good house. We give the following sketch of the piece :-

Raphael licket is shortly after announced by the manager of the lottery office to bear the number winning the baronial mansion and splendid estate, and the lucky ones - who at first abused the unknown donor of the ticket in lies of a coin-now have a banquet with the proceeds of the performance, and the curtain descends, the mountebanks bidding fareings. Act. II. represents a terrace in front of baronial hall now occupied by the mountebanks. All the company are sitting at a table dozing, exclush of Jeames and turned acrobat for the love of Regina, has now returned to his old occupation since the family acquired the baronial hall and is constantly being applied to as an authority on such matters, in correcting the faux pas eplendid estate. Raphael is hunting one day. and the deer taking a course across Cabriolo's park, the young man again encounters Zanetta, Raphael is followed by his father, Prince Casimir, who finds the cause of his son's attraction to that quarter to be the admiration of a wax figure only. and thinking this innocent infutation will divert him from more dangerous objects of admiration, lets him have pretty much his own way. Cabriolo is appointed by the Prince keeper of his museum.

and the mountabanks now move to Prince Casimir's palace. The curtoin rising on Act. III discloses a spacious half. Raphael's love-making now goes on space, especially during his father's absence hunting. The youth is wanted by his father to accompany him on one of these expeditions, but, pretending to be suddenly seized with toothache, is excused by the Prince. He, however, suspects something, and resolves to return auddenly. Raphael in the meantime has a gay party, and at the height of their enjoyment the Prince is heard knocking at the door. They keep him outside sufficiently long to get into position as wax figures, but the Prince having his suspicions wants to examine the machinery by which their movements are executed, and on attempting to do so discovers the deception. Cabriolo now finds out that the Prince is his brother in law and on this discovery Raphael is permitted to marry the Princess of Trebizonde, and Tremolini is rewarded for his constancy with the hand of Regina. This opera depends for its success more on the acting than most of Offenbach's productions

generally. On Saturday evening the first act was decidedly slow, but this not so much the fault of the company as from the baldness of the opera. The second act was much better, owing in great measure to Mr. Vernon's clever acting, but the third was the only one in which theaudience were warmed up to much anthusiasm: Unfortunately a leading role, that of Zanetta, was most inadequately filled, Miss Clara Stanley being quite unable to quetain such a part. But the part of Zanetta would have been better saited to her, had there been anyone else to play Raphael. Mr. Varnon's Cabriolo was all that could be desired and his efforts to redeem the first act from dulness were worthy of great praise. In the second act he kept the audience China to allow the resumption of emigration | the Supreme Court, and of the 174 persons as then asked them if the ten and collect they got in a long fit of marriment by his drollery. SOMNAMBULIST MURDERERS.

According to the daily papers, a prisoner was in a state of somusmbulism, mardered his child and has since been set at liberty. Cases of this kind are vary rare, but, assuming the sommanbulism to be clearly proved, there can be litt question of the correctness of the course thus adopted. Dornbluth, the German psychologist tells of a young woman who, in consequence of a freight occasioned by an attack of robbers, was seized with epilepsy and became subject to somnambulism. While in that condition she was in the liabit of stealing articles, and was charge with theft, but on the advice of Dornbluth was released and eventually cured. Steltzer (citedia.
